

Three More Miracles

Dear Friend,

Was it the wind that spread the news?

No one in the village uses (or has heard of) Facebook. Phones are few and primitive. And most of the people have never traveled in a car. Yet the word spread, and three more women began to ask, I wonder if Ourganda would help us.

Back up in time to the fall of 2018 when our medical team discovered Agnes and Zebrina, two young mothers who were fighting a losing battle with terrible growths on their face and throat. They lived in agony. It was only a matter of time. Thankfully, Ourganda was able to send them to Kampala for life-saving surgery. Everyone is more than thrilled that both ladies are now 100% healed and healthy!

That's why we do what we do. That is why we focus our love and resources on the precious people in Uganda. That's why the news spreads everywhere that Ourganda is saving lives.

Just a few months ago, medical professionals from the U.S. and U.K. were assisting our Ugandan care team in the village of Kitsolima II.

Several beautiful women who were new to us approached Doreen, our local team leader. Each of the women was plagued with a goiter. They had heard that Ourganda helped Agnes and Zebrina so they approached Doreen and asked, Could Ourganda help us, too?

"Yes," I assured them. "We will help." Everything we do is done by faith but I was sure that God would provide. I was certain that someone would step up and "adopt" each of these ladies and give them a chance at a normal life.

Suzan

A week ago, Suzan, Esther, and Sylvia traveled eight hours to Kampala to begin their journey toward healing. Oscar, one of Ourganda's medical clinical officers, is guiding them through the process of meeting with doctors and arranging for scans, labs tests, and biopsies. Every few hours, it seems, Oscar sends us an update of the latest visit with a surgeon or an anesthesiologist. Navigating the medical system in Uganda is more complicated than sorting out a Rubik's Cube, but Oscar is persistent and he is professional.

Esther

Within a few weeks, we expect to share a final report of three more miracles that happened because people like you helped these women when they needed it most. We will share their joy and relief that someone cares, and their future is bright!

Please consider beginning a partnership that helps more people like Suzan, Esther, and Sylvia. Ourganda is saving and extending hundreds of lives. With you on the team, we can do exponentially more.

Thank you!!!

Sylvia
